Behind the Curtain

Stage Combat

A character’s movements can convey as much as his or her words. In fight scenes, blocking is used to decide exactly how the actors will move. From a stylistic point of view, how are the movements captured in these photographs different? Which fight looks most realistic, and why?