

Parent Involvement Matters:

Hundreds of research studies show that when parents get involved, children do better in school.

Major Benefits

Research shows that when parents are involved in their children's education, they are more likely to:

- earn better grades
- score higher on tests
- pass their classes
- attend school regularly
- have better social skills
- show improved behavior
- be more positive in their attitude toward school
- complete homework assignments
- graduate and continue their education

More is Better

Parents can serve many different roles in the educational process: teachers, advocates, volunteers, fundraisers, and boosters. And parents can even serve in decision-making and oversight roles for the school. The more parents participate in a sustained way at each of these levels, the better for student achievement.

At All Levels

When parents get involved early in their children's education, the results are more pronounced and long-lasting. Studies indicate that parent involvement in education has a positive effect at all grade levels: elementary, middle, and high school.

Dads Matter

In both two-parent and father-only households where dads are involved in school, children are more likely to:

- succeed academically
- participate in extracurricular activities
- enjoy school

Students are less likely to:

- have to repeat a grade
- be suspended or expelled

Parent Involvement Matters:

Hundreds of research studies show that when parents get involved, children do better in school.

Major Benefits

Research shows that when parents are involved in their children's education, they are more likely to:

- earn better grades
- score higher on tests
- pass their classes
- attend school regularly
- have better social skills
- show improved behavior
- be more positive in their attitude toward school
- complete homework assignments
- graduate and continue their education

More is Better

Parents can serve many different roles in the educational process: teachers, advocates, volunteers, fundraisers, and boosters. And parents can even serve in decision-making and oversight roles for the school. The more parents participate in a sustained way at each of these levels, the better for student achievement.

At All Levels

When parents get involved early in their children's education, the results are more pronounced and long-lasting. Studies indicate that parent involvement in education has a positive effect at all grade levels: elementary, middle, and high school.

Dads Matter

In both two-parent and father-only households where dads are involved in school, children are more likely to:

- succeed academically
- participate in extracurricular activities
- enjoy school

Students are less likely to:

- have to repeat a grade
- be suspended or expelled

Parent involvement is a powerful tool.
Spread the word.

A Significant Difference

One study found that students from families with above-average parent involvement were 30 percent more successful in school than those with below-average involvement. Success was measured by GPA; test scores in math, science, reading, and social studies; promotion and retention rates; and teacher ratings.

Also Significant

Another study found that in schools where teachers reported high levels of outreach to parents, test scores grew at a rate 40 percent higher than in schools that reported low levels of outreach to parents.

Home and School

A three-year study of 12,000 high school students concluded that, "When parents come to school regularly, it reinforces the view in the child's mind that school and home are connected and that school is an integral part of the whole family's life."

Guess What?

Schools with involved parents enjoy:

- better morale among teachers
- higher ratings of teachers by parents
- more support from families
- a better reputation in the community

Parents Benefit, Too

When they become involved in their children's education, they are more likely to:

- be more confident at school
- be more confident as a parent and in their ability to help children learn
- be held in higher esteem by teachers and have teachers expect more from their children
- enroll in continuing education to advance their own schooling

A Final Note

Why should parents get involved?

Because their involvement can make a dramatic difference for children!

Source: www.ptotoday.com

Parent involvement is a powerful tool.
Spread the word.

A Significant Difference

One study found that students from families with above-average parent involvement were 30 percent more successful in school than those with below-average involvement. Success was measured by GPA; test scores in math, science, reading, and social studies; promotion and retention rates; and teacher ratings.

Also Significant

Another study found that in schools where teachers reported high levels of outreach to parents, test scores grew at a rate 40 percent higher than in schools that reported low levels of outreach to parents.

Home and School

A three-year study of 12,000 high school students concluded that, "When parents come to school regularly, it reinforces the view in the child's mind that school and home are connected and that school is an integral part of the whole family's life."

Guess What?

Schools with involved parents enjoy:

- better morale among teachers
- higher ratings of teachers by parents
- more support from families
- a better reputation in the community

Parents Benefit, Too

When they become involved in their children's education, they are more likely to:

- be more confident at school
- be more confident as a parent and in their ability to help children learn
- be held in higher esteem by teachers and have teachers expect more from their children
- enroll in continuing education to advance their own schooling

A Final Note

Why should parents get involved?

Because their involvement can make a dramatic difference for children!

Source: www.ptotoday.com

PARENT OUTREACH AND ENGAGEMENT DEPARTMENT
HAROLD J. BALLARD PARENT CENTER
www.sandi.net/parentoutreach
(619) 293-4431

PARENT OUTREACH AND ENGAGEMENT DEPARTMENT
HAROLD J. BALLARD PARENT CENTER
www.sandi.net/parentoutreach
(619) 293-4431